FALL TO UNDERGO EXAMINATION AT EL PASO CLINIC

To Determine If Former Interior Secretary Able to Serve Term

EL PASO, June 16, (AP)—Another step in the ten-year old case of Albert B. Fall, convicted of accepting a bribe while secretary of the interior, became known Tuesday with the announcement Fall would be given a physical examination at a government hospital here.

Fall made public a telegram from Frank Hogan, his attorney, which said the government wanted him examined at William Beaumont general hospital to determine whether he was able to go to Washington to accept sentence of one year in jail and $100,000 fine.

Pardon Unlikely.

WASHINGTON, June 16. (AP)—Any hopes that Albert B. Fall might have had of a presidential pardon were apparently ended Tuesday by President Hoover's speech at Marion, Ohio.

Praise for Warren G. Harding from the president was accompanied by a denunciation of those who betrayed him.

Fall was Harding's interior secretary. His part in leasing naval oil reserves contributed to the scandals which followed Harding's death. It led, too, to a sentence of a year in prison and a $100,000 fine, for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil operator.

Fall's long fight to have the conviction reversed has failed and executive clemency was his one remaining chance of having his sentence entirely lifted.

'DISILLUSIONMENT SEARED SOUL OF HARDING'--HOOVER

President Says Former Executive Knew He Was Being Betrayed

CONFLICTING TALES TOLD IN CAPITAL

Republican Leader Brings Eye-Witness Version of Last Days

WASHINGTON, June 16. (AP)—Memories confused by years of questionings and rumor were stirred Tuesday by Herbert Hoover's words of tribute and compassion for Warren Harding.

A subject long and deeply pondered was touched by the president with the intimate directness of an eye witness when he thus described at Marion the last days of Mr. Harding:

"He was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. Warren Harding had a dim realization that he was being betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted."

Many Stories Told

Many have been the conflicting stories told in Washington as the proof of how much or how little the dying president foresaw the revelations which rocked the country after he had passed away. Fragments of recollection of incidents and chance remarks have been marshalled in countless efforts to piece out circumstantially the real story. Books have been written; one at least of those who was nearest the central figure of the drama has considered publication of a volume in refutation.

Out of it all has emerged very little of detail having the color of accepted authenticity. It has become common belief in the capital, however, that Mr. Harding did come to a realization of some of those irregularities. In the veterans bureau for which Charles R. Forbes was sent to prison; and that he heard and partly believed some of the grave charges which months later drove Harry M. Daugherty from the cabinet. It remains more of a mystery what he may have known or suspected of the transactions which now have brought Albert B. Fall to the door of the penitentiary.

Mr. Hoover's statements Tuesday are the first public confirmation from such a source that matters like these were heavy on the mind of the twenty-ninth president as he approached the end of his life.

Coming from such a source these statements were accepted in Washington as a most unusual contribution to contemporary history. It is extraordinary that a president, dying far from home, should have had almost at his bedside another destined for the presidency, who later should testify in the tenor of Mr. Hoover's remarks at Marion.

Charges Filed In Ohio Mine Strike

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 16. (AP)—The Ohio criminal syndicalism law was invoked here Tuesday in connection with disorders arising from the strike of more than 3,000 coal miners in Belmont, Jefferson and Harrison counties.

Charges of violating the statute were filed against Leo Thompson, 23, Pittsburgh strike leader, arrested last week when a crowd stormed the Belmont county jail in an attempt to secure the release of several strikers involved in other disorders. He pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing.

Two other strike instigators, Frank Kascich and Henry Wald, were charged with aiding Thompson in alleged violation of the syndicalism law. They also pleaded not guilty.

Thompson is a leader of the national miners' union, directing the strike and claimed by authorities to be composed of communistic agitators.

Personalities Behind The News

(The following is another of a series of stories dealing with the little known side of personalities frequently in the news.)

BY MARYLLA CHRZANOWSKA
(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

WARSAW, Poland, (AP)—The inauguration of Professor Ignatz Moscicki as president of Poland was delayed two days because he didn't have a dress shirt. Indications now are that he is somewhat sorry he found one.

It wasn't that the distinguished professor did not own evening attire. At the time of his election in 1926, Poland was in political turmoil. Moscicki, traveling light, happened to be passing through Warsaw on his way from The Hague to Lemberg, and, as he expressed it, the presidency was "wished on him."

Not Politically Prominent.

A teacher of chemistry whose entire life had been spent in the pursuit of technical knowledge, he never had been politically prominent. He was placed at the head of the state by Marshal Pilsudski, who had effected a military coup and considered it politic that his friend hold the title of power while he retained its substance.

The presidency has turned out to be a sort of golden cage to the teacher of chemistry—a cage from which he would escape to his retorts and microscopes. His old apartment, with its friendly chemical gear, has more appeal for him than the sumptuous presidential residence located in the "Zamek," the ancient royal palace of Warsaw.

Not Fond of Luxuries.

Ascending to the presidency, the professor found at his command mansions built for the czars of Russia and the Emperor of Germany in those sections of his nation which had been restored after the war. He had, too, a new chateau, constructed especially for him, in the Silesian hills. There was a fleet of automobiles, and the best cooks in Poland.

But these have not proved interesting playthings for the man of science. He accepted the presidency because of his deep devotion to Pilsudski, knowing that the power would remain in the hands of his military friend, and now he is so tired of his job that according to persistent rumors, he wants to resign as soon as Pilsudski finds the man to relieve him.

The presidency has been difficult to the scientist because it had entailed a round of functions which duty alone made him attend. There are unceasing public appearances, and interminable handshakings. There are many speeches. And though treated with great honor, he knows he is a "rubber stamp."

CAPONE ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY TO TRIO CHARGES

Income Tax Evasion, Conspiracy to Violate Prohibition Laws Alleged

FACES POSSIBLE 34 YEAR SENTENCE

Hearing Means Abdication Of Throne He Has Held Ten Years

CHICAGO, June 16, (AP)—Alphonse Capone, scarfaced czar of Chicago's gangs, pleaded guilty to three federal indictments Tuesday surrendering in a three-minute federal court hearing to a mass of evidence and a striking record of prosecutions.

Two indictments charging him with evading income taxes and another naming him and 68 others for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws on 5,000 charges were read in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court. After each indictment the burly gangster meekly said "guilty." On a defense motion, the court deferred sentence until June 30.

Police Escort Gangster.

Fifteen minutes after he had entered the federal court building Capone was gone, escorted through the crowds by a squad of police, a monarch stripped of his realm, still the object of almost unparalelled curiosity. Thousands jammed the streets outside the federal building to see him.

In throwing himself on the mercy of the court, Capone became subject to a possible 34 years imprisonment and a $90,000 fine. Maximum sentence on the liquor conspiracy count was two years. A 32-year sentence was possible under the two income tax indictments, but precedent would indicate a much lighter sentence.

The longest sentence for income tax evasion on a plea of guilty has been two years.

Blow to Al.

For Capone the hearing was a severe blow, the certain abdication for a time at least of the throne he has held for 10 years. With the exception of a year spent in a Philadelphia jail for carrying concealed weapons and a federal sentence of six months, still under appeal, for contempt of court, Capone had gone his way, working to the head of his own gang and then wiping out the others almost unmolested by the law.

He had achieved a worldwide reputation for the ruthless way he ruled the underworld, and the many audacious murders supposedly executed by his corps of gunmen. Tuesday night the talk concerned Capone's successor. It was two weeks before sentence was to be passed, possibly longer before he actually goes to prison, but Capone was spoken of already as out of the way.

FORMER DETROIT POSTMASTER DIES

Miss Bertie Freeman Succumbs Tuesday At the Home Of Sister

Funeral services for Miss Bartie Freeman, former postmaster at Detroit, who died at 8:45 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of her sister Mrs. Frank Griffin in Deport, will be held Wednesday afternoon from the Baptist church in Detroit with the Rev. Avery Rogers of Deport and the Rev. T. W. Mathis of Detroit officiating. Burial will be in the Bluffs cemetery northeast of Detroit.

Mis Freeman was born January 28, 1877 near Detroit. She taught school in Lamar and Red River counties for several years until 1921. In 1921 she became postmaster of Detroit and continued in that position until January 1 of this year when failing health caused her to retire. For many years she was correspondent at Detroit for the Paris Morning News. Since January she has been confined to her bed most of the time.

Survivors are her mother, Mrs. Sue Freeman, and six sisters, Mrs. J. C. Simpson of Antlers, Okla., Mrs. W. E. Rollins and Mrs. Frank Griffin of Deport, Mrs. F. D. Horner of Bogata, Mrs. Warner Ragan of Paris and Mrs. T. L. Guest of Detroit.

Caviness Man Treated For Gunshot Wound

Lawrence Payne of Caviness, route one, was admitted to Lamar hospital about 10 o'clock Tuesday night for treatment for a gunshot wound in his right side. The wound was not serious, the bullet having lodged in the flesh.

Hospital authorities said that Payne was mistaken for a prowler and shot by a resident of that community.

Difficulties Over Oil Production Still Unsettled

SPECULATION ON HOOVER'S PLAN OF TAX REVISION

Definite Move Toward Such Legislation at Next Congress Debated

WASHINGTON, June 16. (AP)—President Hoover's proposals for revision of the nation's tax and banking systems brought speculation Tuesday on whether a definite move toward such legislation would be made at the next congress.

The chief executive's recommendations were voiced at Indianapolis Monday night in an address devoted to business conditions.

Previously, Secretary Mellon and undersecretary Mills, had advocated revision of the tax laws.

Approval of the Hoover address was expressed by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, while Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, criticized it for failing to give definite recommendations.

Reserve System Inadequate

President Hoover said the Federal reserve system was inadequate to prevent diversion of funds into "wasteful speculation and stock promotion" and that the banking system must be "organzed to give greater protection to depositors against failures.

He added "we must determine whether the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions."

Bingham said he favored elimination of the capital gains on tax on the ground that such action would promote better business conditions and increase the income of the treasury.

Senator Caraway said he agreed some changes in the banking and tax systems might be advisable.

"But what Mr. Hoover said," he added, "is this: 'There is some way out of the depression, but I don't know what it is.

Groups Ponder The Problem of New Texas Field

DALLAS, June 16 (AP)—Texas' oil chasm over curbing production in the East Texas field seemed deeper Tuesday while two groups labored over solutions neither side would accept from the other.

While a committee at Tyler met preliminary to petitioning the railroad commission to place in effect the 300 barrels per 20 acres plan ratified at a mass meeting of operators there Monday, a group in Dallas pored over proposed legislation it hoped to submit to a special session of the legislature it had asked Governor Ross Sterling to convene. The latter faction favored strengthening the railroad commission's power to enforce proration based on potential.

Unit Plan "Illegal"

Three of the legislative group signed a statement declaring it had been advised by attorneys that "from what they have seen" of the unit plan "it violates the laws of this state in so many ways that it is doubtful that the attorney general will permit the railroad commission to issue an order." It was signed by W. L. Todd of Dallas and Charles Roeser and Ed Landreth of Fort Worth.

The committee named to arbitrate the unit plan held a session Tuesday and named Capt. J. F. Lucey of Dallas chairman and J. R. Parten of Shreveport, La., secretary. Others in attendance were Underwood Nazro of the Gulf Production company, J. Fred Stuckey of Longview, Dr. A. J. Deason of Henderson and Bert Shaw of Wichita Falls.

It issued a statement, in which it urged producers in the East Texas field "to observe a rate not to exceed 300 barrels per well per day." It recommended to the railroad commission that it issue an emergency order placing the unit plan in effect.

Reports from all sections of the county indicate excellent stands of crops further enhanced by the .75 inches rainfall of Monday. Throughout the county the rain was welcomed by farmers and business men. However, reports from southern and southeastern sections of the county state the need for more rain.

Between Pattonville and Deport it was reported, corn was blown down during the prevailing stiff wind but no losses are expected to result. The corn has not reached a stage of maturity sufficient to prevent it from straightening.

Corn and cotton particularly benefited from the rains and showers of the past five days. Threshing of oats, unhampered by heavy rains and winds in the western section of the county, nears completion.

Reports from Biardstown state Monday night's rain there was not sufficient. Light hail Monday night in the northwestern section of the county around Unity was reported. Chicota reports excellent outlook for crops with the two rains fulfilling a prolonged need.

Only one report of fruit tree losses during the storm of last week has been received here. North of Blossom a slight damage of fruit trees was reported.

Benefits to crops through the rains, according to reports, easily have counterbalanced any damages resulting from high winds.

A vacant house on the W. H. Lollar farm, just northwest of Bogata, was wrecked by the high wind of Monday evening. The residence of Wade Hatcher, on the Ed H. McCuistion farm between Pattonville and Deport, was partly unroofed by the wind.

Rain in the Pattonville, Deport, Bogata, Clarksville, Detroit and Blossom communities was very heavy, according to D. E. Rorie, News motor route manager who made the trip Tuesday morning, leaving Paris at 3 o'clock.

STATE ATTORNEY IS CHARGED IN PANTAGES TRIAL

Defense Counsel Says Theatrical Magnate 'Persecuted' Man

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 16. (AP)—Defense attorneys pointed accusing fingers at District Attorney Burton Fitts of Los Angeles county in arguments to the jury Tuesday and voiced pleas for the acquittal of Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, and his three co-defendants in the "girl market" case.

Edgar A. Luce and L. H. McKinney, attorneys for Jesse H. Shreve, San Diego business man, and one of the defendants; Lorrin Andrews attorey for Olive Clark Day, and William Jobelman, who acted as his own counsel, addressed the jury.

Should Add Third Count

Andrews said that if the intention of the San Diego prosecutor was to see justice done, a third count should have been added to the charges of conspiracy and violation of the juvenile court law placed against Pantages, Shreve and Mrs. Day and Jobelmann, the alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl mart".

The third count, he said, should have been a "charge of criminal conspiracy against Buron Fitts and John P. Mills (a prosecution witness) to convict Pantages of a crime on perjured testimony."

Andrews said Fitts, for reasons of personal ambition was "persecuting Pantages."

Superior Judge L. N. Turrentine said he would begin his instructions to the jury at 11 a. m., Wednesday in order that the jurors might begin deliberation immediately after lunch.

STORES TO CLOSE AT 5 DURING JULY, AUGUST

To Remain Open July 4, Questionable Advertising Schemes Scored

The institution of Farmers' Sales Day received a boost, "wildcat" advertising schemes got a hard knock, retail store employes were voted an extra 53 hours vacation during July and August, and Paris merchants decided not to close on the fourth of July, when the retailers' division of the Chamber of Commerce held its monthly meeting Tuesday morning.

Following a custom of several years standing, stores will close at 5 o'clock from July 1 to September 1, it was decided. In voting not to close stores on the Fourth of July, the body took into consideration that no formal program had been planned and that people from out of town who come to Paris for their supplies would be seriously inconvenienced by a Saturday closing.

T. B. Revell, chairman, reported that the advertising committee is functioning, saying that much waste on advertising schemes of questionable merit can be avoided if merchants will refer solicitors to the advertisnig committee for approval of their proposition before buying.

When a large sedan in which four girls and two boys were riding turned over twice Sunday afternoon about 12:30 o'clock on Highway 70 east of Hugo, three people were injured and Miss Lillian Braswell of Paris, the driver, was rendered unconscious for 18 hours. She was brought to Lamar hospital for treatment and was released from the hospital Monday night.

Robert Lee Roberts of Ft. Towson, Oklahoma, and Miss Cora Mae Ward of Paris received minor injuries. The other occupants of the car, Miss Lena Braswell and Miss Mildred Benson of Paris and Maddox Sheppard of Ft. Towson escaped injury. Mr. Roberts received lacerations about the head and right shoulder, while Miss Ward had her back and head bruised.

Miss Lillian Braswell's condition was not as serious as was first supposed. She was brought to Paris from Hugo in an ambulance.

Search For Men Last Seen With Slain Heiress

NEW YORK, June 16, (AP)—Along half a hundred new trails the state Tuesday pursued clues to the mysterious death a week ago of Starr Faithfull, beautiful young Greenwich Village girl. At Mineola her mother, sister and step-father were questioned lengthily again for intimate facts of her troubled life.

Prosecutor Elvin Edwards, adhering to his belief the 25 year old beauty was murdered, pressed his search for two men with whom Starr told her mother she spent a part of the day before her disappearance.

Edwards described the men as Jack Greenway and Bruce Winston. "These men," he declared, "are highly important. If we can find them and learn where Miss Faithfull was the day before she disappeared, we'll have the mystery solved, I believe."

Paris Bar Association Meets Tuesday; Judge Dohoney Named President

Peparing a resolution for the Paris Bar association on the death of its president, A. P. Park, a committee composed of H. B. Birmingham, W. F. Moore, A. P. Dohoney and S. B. M. Long tells of the 50 years outstanding work with the bar association the lawyer had done.

At a meeting of the association Tuesday A. P. Dohoney was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Park's death. Hardy Moore was chosen secretary of the association when R. W. Wortham resigned.

The resolution adopted by the organization is as follows:

FARM NEWS OF THE WEEK

Demand For Spot Cotton Greater As Prices Hold

By FRANK L. WELLER
Associated Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—Active switching out of July into the more distant months as demand for spot cotton improved and prices held practically unchanged from a week ago marked futures trading over the last market period.

Cooperative brokers bought May but the trade bought other months notably December. Spot houses were good buyers of July against sales of March. New Orleans turned buyer with at times a scarcity of contracts. Most of the buying of near months was credited to mills fixing prices. The market met cotton on the rally but contracts seemed easily absorbed.

Prices touched a new low for the season on June 9 when the average price for middling 7-8 inch went to 7.62 on the 19 markets. By June 12 the price was up to 8.07 compared with 7.96 a week earlier. July futures for the week advanced 5 points at New York, 9 at New Orleans and 5 at Chicago.

Although speculation is an indifferent buyer and there continues to be many inclined to the short side of everything, there seems to be more resistance to declines in the cotton market and a constant amount of price fixing which is giving the market a steadier undertone.

There are plenty to predict lower levels, some going so far as to suggest 7-cent cotton in New York in December, but others recall that liquidation is becoming less active while trade buying goes on all the time and point to the consumption of about 900,000 bales a month.

The department of agriculture says the week brought a fair demand for premium staple, some reports that present available supplies were dwindling to a point where buyers are having trouble in meeting their needs. Southern mill centers said there was a fair demand for raw cotton. Inquiries for carded yarns were said to have improved.

The cotton textile institute says the week resulted in tremendously increased retail sales and likely marks the beginning of continuous and cumulative sales activities in all lines of cotton fabrics. The farm board has been advised that civic organizations of the south are urging daily publicity to increase the consumption of cotton.

Private reports said rain was needed in parts of Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. It was the general opinion that the crop is not making normal June progress. A 500-mile tour through Georgia and the Carolinas convinced one trader that the crop is 2 to 4 weeks late and "does not look good."

Everett E. Cook, president of the Memphis cotton exchange, said that unless something unforseen develops the south will have its greatest reduction in cotton acreage in history.

Reports of boll weevil emergence in Texas and South Carolina indicate emergency in some spots in Texas is the highest of record. The American cotton crop service says weevil damage for the belt as a whole never exceeds that of the preceding year by more than 12 per cent. The estimated damage for 1930 was 5 per cent and maximum damage for 1931, it says, should not exceed 17 per cent.

Cows Pay $20 Ton For Home Grown Feeds

QUITMAN.—In spite of low milk prices Jersey cows have turned home grown bulky feed into profit and kept up the fertility of the soil for James E. Taylor, dairy herd demonstrator of East Point community, Wood county. As reported by James W. McGown, county agent, the ration for the first three months of the year consisted of 10 pounds daily of ground hegari bundles, 4 pounds Bermuda hay, 5 pounds ground peanut vines including nuts, and 2½ pounds cottonseed meal. They produced an average of 20 pounds of milk per day and at market prices it brought $20 per ton for the ground roughages after figuring $5 per ton for the grinding, and counting the manure worth the labor of caring for the cows. Mr. Taylor states that the cows have given more milk during this period on this demonstration system than ever before at the same time of the year.

'BIGGER AND BETTER VEGETABLES' SLOGAN OF TEXAS GARDENERS

AUSTIN, June 16—Texas gardeners are going in for bigger and better fruits and vegetables.

At least that's the opinion of W. A. Canon, marketing chief in the department of agriculture. Not only is the demand for inspectors in the usual truck garden areas heavier than ever before, but sections outside the regular commercial areas apparently are seeking to bring their vegetables and fruits up to standards set by the state and federal departments of agriculture, Canon said.

Scores of requests have been received for the state department's bulletin outlining government standards, which have been adopted officially by the state. In one day recently, requests were received for 250 copies.

These bulletins are being used principally by home demonstration agents, working out of A. & M. college, who seek to teach farmers and club members to concentrate on quality as well as quantity in their gardens, large or small.

When the production of any section justifies inspection service and requests are made for this service, an accredited inspector is sent to the point to certify to the standard of vegetables being shipped to market. But even in those communities where truck gardening is not considered of major importance the individual farmer may, by adhering to government standards, build up his reputation for quality production locally, thus creating a steady demand for his produce, Canon pointed out.

Two acres of beets planted in October by A. M. Stone of Petronila community, Nueces county, completely fed 110 hogs, and furnished succulent feed for 40 dairy cows and calves, 15 sheep and four mules during April. A total of 3,600 pounds of beets were fed and Mr. Stone said he had enough left for another 30 days.

At the THEATER

At the Plaza

On the screen of the Plaza theater Thursday the story of "Trader Horn" will consume two hours, but to that end two years were spent and a company of nearly 40 persons traveled 25,000 miles to the east coast of Africa. A fleet of trucks and automobiles transported the crew and some eighty tons of equipment often over roads newly made in the trackless jungle and which by now are again choked by the rank undergrowth. Entire native villages, including all the inhabitants, were hired from the tribal sultans, hundreds of crocodiles were concentrated in desired locations, hippopotami were herded like sheep and bands of wild beasts carefully stalked until they could be photographed with convincing realism.

A nine-ton electric generator supplied current to the flood lights and arcs necessary even on the sunniest days to make photographs in the thickly thatched jungle. Blinds were made, bait was set and to the troubles of camera placement were added the multifold perplexities of the then comparatively new medium of sound.

At the Lamar

If you can picture Buster Keaton in the role of a "great lover" you have a partial idea of the hilarity which pervades the comedian's latest talkie, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," beginning today for a two day engagement at the Lamar theater.

Those who recall the stage version of the comedy will not be disappointed in Keaton's filmization, which not only includes all the original laugh episodes but adds several more which are equally as funny.

Charlotte Greenwood, whose droll antics added immeasurably to the success of the Broadway hit, was wisely included in the talkie cast and her inimitable stunts with those long legs get as many roars from the audience as ever. One scene in particular in which Miss Greenwood plays "dead" and Keaton attempts in vain to hide her elongated body is as funny as anything ever seen on the screen.

Mitchell county 4-H club boys have demonstrated that they can get from 50 to 368 pounds more of milo maize heads per acre from pure line seed than for ordinary seed.

With Lamar
Home Demonstration Clubs

If it's not one thing it is another with the club women of Lamar county. Not so many days ago it was canning, but the tune has changed and the women are singing FAIR, fair, fair. Preparations for the annual Lamar Fair are being made by women in every home demonstration club.

Even Miss Cooper, the home demonstration agent, has traded off her pressure canner (which generally could be found in her car when she made visits to the county clubs) for fair products. Monday the car was full of apron samples by which the club women are to model the aprons they are to make for the fair.

Great interest is being aroused for the encampment for the women which is to be held in July. The camp is to be different from those held in previous years in that new demonstrations are to be given.

It is not too late for people to plant annuals in their yards and gardens. Garden experts say there is something that should be planted for the gardens and yards every season of the year.

After the council meeting Wednesday a committee meeting concerning the encampment was held with Miss Cooper. The encampment preparations are practically all to be handled by the council members, Miss Cooper has said.

Fifteen cars made the county tour trip last week to visit the various interesting demonstrations being carried on over the southern part of Lamar county. Only one flat was had. Considering the number of cars and the number of people along on the tour, the trouble was just about nil.

It has been suggested that club women of the county put some of the many eggs they are receiving from their chickens into storage so that during the winter months they may have as many eggs as they desire. With some of the women this suggestion has taken and eggs are being put up but with the majority the age old yen for fresh eggs, eggs that are not months old, holds and they are depending upon the hen for their winter eggs during the winter.

In the county there are numerous home demonstration women who are raising milk fed chickens. Most of these chickens have been raised for the market and will undoubtedly bring a much better price than other friers and broilers. Saturday afternoon in the county agent's office there were about ten women heatedly arguing whether reds were better than white leghorns or plain fed chickens better than milk fed. To the layman this means nothing for a chicken is a chicken when it's cooked whether it is a Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red or an English Leghorn and the layman can not tell whether the chicken has been fed milk or corn. But anyone can tell when a chicken is extraordinarily tender or tough for that matter. The club women are trying to make every chicken they prepare for the market tender by feeding them milk.

Many women in the county are putting up jellies and fruits now that the berries etc. are flourishing. The vegetables have not been slighted in the canning process, however, and the pantries of most clubs seem to be rounding out into those which will serve families adequate diets during the winter.

If this column is pleasing to the club members and they want it to continue they should send in letters to the demonstration editor about their club meetings. The column is written for the home demonstration women and we would appreciate their support.

SUMMER SCHOOLS ON SOIL CONSERVATION TO START JUNE 30

AUSTIN, June 16.—The program of farm terracing demonstrations sponsored by a group of agricultural agencies, which start June 30, was commended to farmers all over the state today by J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, as an opportunity to learn practical lessons in soil conservation.

The program was planned by A. K. (Dad) Short of the Federal Land Bank Houston, M. R. Bentley extension service of A. & M. college, and R. Reece, agricultural agent of the M.-K.-T. railroad.

They will be in active charge of the demonstrations, assisted by representatives from the state department of agriculture, the department of vocational agriculture, county commissioners' courts, and other organizations in the communities in which the demonstrations will be held.

The first demonstration will be on Hollandale Farm in Dallas county, owned and operated by Frank P. Holland, publisher of Farm and Ranch, who has taken an active interest in the work.

For the first time this year the committee planned to take advantage of the new law allowing use of county owned road machinery in terracing farm lands, members of the committee pointing out that with this aid, the maximum amount of work could be accomplished.

Schools will extend over the entire summer, with demonstrations in several different sections of the state. The itinerary has not been completed.

Commending the program to all persons interested in agriculture, McDonald declared too little attention had been paid to soil conservation in Texas.

"Our soil," he said, "is our most valuable natural resource and we have been mining it at an alarming rate. All interested in soil conservation would do well to attend these terracing demonstrations and obtain valuable and instructive information from these men who are devoting their time to this most important work."

All fees are paid by the treasurer of the fund directly to the physician or dentist on completion of the service.

Reduction For Fire Insurance At Warehouses

AUSTIN, June 16.—Fifty per cent of the agricultural warehouses of Texas have obtained a reduction in fire insurance rates since January by complying with a fire insurance commission rule to make a monthly report to the commission, according to L. L. Shackelford, warehouse chief.

By making a monthly report of the condition of their premises in regard to fire hazards, the warehouses are entitled to a 15 per cent reduction in their rates. Few of the warehouse owners know of this law, and hence were not taking advantage of it.

The monthly report also serves as a regular reminder to operators of storage houses to protect their establishments against the danger of fire.

COTTON MAN URGES SUBSTITUTION OF COTTON FOR JUTE

AUSTIN, June 16.—In a letter to J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, the belief was expressed by W. J. Walker, cotton agency proprietor of New Orleans, that jute holds the "balance of power" in arriving at the price of cotton.

Walker cited figures from Leasville McCampbell, cotton manufacturer and selling agent of New York city, that to replace jute with cotton in its many uses as burlap bags and bagging would increase the consumption of American cotton in America by 1,500,000 bales a year.

"The farmer will have to start housecleaning at home, by covering his cotton with cotton bagging, by demanding his fertilizer sacked in cotton sacks," Walker declared. "Positively no success can be had in preaching increased use of cotton when the farmer uses jute.

"Cotton bagging and cotton sacks are available, and if the farmer will demand them, half the battle will be won.

"Just suppose that six years ago we had stopped importation of jute into this country, or had refrained from using it for any purpose. We would have consumed about nine million bales or more of cotton in that period, and there would be a cotton famine now instead of the largest surplus in the history of the south."

Walker is making a speaking tour in Mississippi, in company with J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture of that state.

Fifteen of the presidents of the United States have had their pictures on postage stamps.

Favorable Yield From Oat Tracts In This County

Throughout the west section of the county farmers during the past two weeks have been busy harvesting oats. Favorable weather conditions during the winter and spring have effected excellent yields.

With the increase of acreage devoted to oats and wheat in Lamar county, much interest has been stimulated in combines. At the present time there are three combines in operation in Lamar county. Mechanical power on the larger farms gradually is replacing the mules.

With an expected yield of 75 to 80 bushels of oats per acre, a 67 acre plot on Jack Coleman's farm near High recently was harvested by means of a combine. Not only does the combine cut and thresh the oats but the straw is scattered back on the ground to be plowed under for fertilizer.

In addition to the 67 acre plot in oats, Mr. Coleman has 180 acres of spring oats which he expects to thresh at an early date. The 67 acre plot last year was in cotton and in November was sowed in oats at 3½ bushels per acre.

Approximately 450 acres of oats have been threshed on Oscar McBath's farm near High, with a remainder of 150 acres in oats yet to be threshed. A combine and four binders have been in use on the McBath farm. Mr. McBath expects a yield of more than 50 bushels per acre.

Planted in cotton and oats last year, 500 acres of the land sown in oats pastured cattle during the fall. Approximately 300 acres were sown in oats in October while the remaining 550 acres were sown in January. Three to three and one-half bushels of oats were sown per acre.

Sufficient oats for feed will be saved while the remainder will be sold, Mr. McBath said. On his farm are granaries with a capacity of 40,000 bushels.

From 50 acres on Oscar Dunagan's farm north of Paris, 4,600 bushels of oats were threshed with a combine. A remaining 200 acres of oats will be harvested when dryness returns. Approximately 1,500 bushels of oats already have been threshed from the 200 acre tract.

Of the remaining 200 acres yet to be threshed, 100 acres are in spring oats while 100 are in fall oats. Approximately 2 bushels of oats were sown per acre in 140 acres, while 60 acres were volunteer oats. Oats occupied 40 acres of the land last year with the remainder being used for cotton.

Approximately 110 head of cattle were pastured through the winter on 60 acres of the land and taken off March 1. The cattle will be put back on the land when the oats have been threshed.

With an expected yield of 50 to 75 bushels of oats per acre, 500 acres of the M. L. Smiley farm west of Paris Monday were finished in harvesting. The land last year was in oats and probably will be used for oats next year.

Average of 3½ bushels per acre were sown in 300 acres in fall oats and 200 acres in spring oats. Nearly all the oats will be used for feed.

Expect to Ship Many Potatoes

With the digging of potatoes as soon as the ground dries and in the event of fair prices, between 50 and 60 acres of potatoes are expected to be shipped from Arthur City and Trout spur, A. L. Edmiston, county agent, said Tuesday. Tuesday, prices ranged from 80 cents to $1 per hundred pounds.

Buyers from northern firms have moved in preparatory to the shipping of the potato crop.

Although the yield was cut short by frost, heavy shipping is expected from the productions of the farms in the northern section of the county along Red river.

Thirty-seven Lynn county h demonstration club women made 494 pounds of Amer cheese worth 40 cents per po on the local market. It cost about 15½ cents per pound milk valued at 12 cents per lon and labor at 25 cents hour.

SERIES HELD AT CONGREGATIONAL

Special Music by Quartet Precedes Tuesday Sermon by Evangelist

Following the inspirational song service including choruses, the First Baptist church quartet sang two numbers at the Congregational church revival service Tuesday evening and Rev. Harlin J. Roper took as his text "Sin," with the scripture reading from the first two chapters of the Gospel of St. Mark.

The four divisions of the message were: The origin of sin, which was Satan attempting to take the place of God and this sin was given to Adam and finally to mankind; the weakening effects of sin; the offensiveness of sin, and sin as man's master. Mr. Roper said: "Sin costs something. Sin cost God something—the Lily of the Valley, the Rose of Sharon, God's only Begotten Son. Sin cost Satan something, it cost him his place as ruler. Sin cost Adam something, his place in the garden of Eden. Sin cost Israel something; it cost them their place in Palestine and as a result they are scattered all over the earth today. Sin costs society something; in one city alone it cost $600,000 in one year. Sin costs the unsaved man something; it costs him God.

Sin costs us something. It may cost our health. Even after men are saved, they sometimes allow sin to come into their lives and cost them physical health; sin costs the Christian answered prayer; sin costs you fellowship with God, with His Son, and with each other. And sin costs the Christian much fruit of their labor. Sin is the one thing that can separate the Christian from a loving Father and mighty Creator. It is not a 'skin disease'; it goes to the heart and I believe that if men could realize just what power it has in their lives, they would never allow it to get a start.

"Do you want God to make your life a blessing? Do you want to be used for God tonight? Unsaved man, we can grit our teeth and make all kinds of resolutions that we are going to do just what we know is right, but we can never live that life until God gives us a new heart because that is where the sin really is. What a glorious experience we can have if we confess our sins and allow Him to remove sin from our lives!"

The message for Wednesday evening will be "Believe It or Not!"

State Begins Today to Operate On Deficit

DALLAS, June 16. (AP)—The state of Texas begins operating on a deficit Wednesday.

Charlie Lockhart, dimunitive state treasurer, in Dallas Tuesday said he had issued a call for all outstanding warrants, and when they were paid Wednesday, the much discussed deficit would become effective.

Lockhart said, while the deficit was estimated to run between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000 by September 1, he believed it would reach the $5,000,000 mark before the state's avenue collecting machinery began assembling funds in the treasury again.

DRAW RESOLUTION

Federal court since that time. His ability as a lawyer, and sound judgment and integrity as a man, soon won him a good clientage, and he rose rapidly to eminence in his profession. He has perhaps engaged in more important litigation than any of his contemporaries, and with zeal and fidelity exceeded by none. He loved his profession and his brother lawyers, and was always ready to advise and counsel them, especially young lawyers coming to him with their problems, whom he graciously and patiently gave the benefit of his rich store of learning and experience. He practiced law on a high plane, fought for clients openly and without subterfuge; his respect for the courts and fair dealing with opposing counsel parties and witnesses won and held him the respect and esteem of all.

Judge Park has gone to his reward. His life as a man, a citizen, a lawyer and above all, a Christian, was an open book, the reading of which has made for the betterment of the world in which he lived. His legal learning and ability as counselor and advocate will stand as an example to be emulated by those who follow him.

RESOLVED THEREFORE, that we deplore his death, mourn with those near and dear to him who sorrow at his passing and place on the records of the courts of Lamar county this testimonial to his life among us.

CONNECTICUT SETS AN EXAMPLE

CALIFORNIA'S recent complaint of the failure of intensive safety drives to halt an increasing motor accident record is countered by the contrasting success of similar measures in Connecticut. For two years in succession the latter state has recorded a diminishing number of automobile accidents, and last year the number of persons killed in such mishaps fell 10 per cent, accompanied by a three per cent decline in the number of injured.

Reports for the first four months of 1931 show that safety propaganda is continuing to bear fruit despite another increase in the registrations. Accidents numbered 4,518 against 5,407 in the first third of 1930; fatalities, 102, against 114; injuries 2,970, against 3,187.

These results invite study. The research director of the Connecticut department of motor vehicles attributes them to "the response of the public to appeals for caution and careful driving and walking," made through governmental authority, motor clubs and civic organizations. But these are precisely the methods used elsewhere—not alone in California, but in dozens of other states—without effect.

Is it possible that the people of Connecticut are more responsive to appeals to common sense than their neighbors? Or are the regulative laws of that state more uniformly and stringently enforced?

ALL QUIET ON RIO GRANDE

IN the proposed abandonment of Forts D. A. Russell and Brown and Camps Stephen D. Little and Harry J. Jones "because they are obsolete and no longer of strategic value" lies, possibly the most significant fact in the plan to pare the Army budget.

All four forts are on the Mexican border. For years following the Madero revolution, Ft. Russell, then Camp Marfa, was a center of border patrol activity. Ojinaga, directly south of Marfa, was a pawn passed from one revolution horde to another. Bandit raids into the Big Bend cattle country were of almost daily occurrence. Ft. Brown, another far-flung out-post of the First Cavalry Division guarded the lower Rio Grande, Camp Little and Camp Jones were created soon after Villa's raid on Columbus, and maintained because of the constant menace of guerilla warfare in troubled Sonora.

In the passing of these four posts is a gratifying recognition of the fact that Mexico is at last possessed of a government competent to police its own frontiers and solve its own problems. Forts Bliss, Huachuca and Sam Houston remain, reminding us that we have not yet achieved an unguarded border-line to the south as to the north, but at least an encouraging step has been taken toward the accomplishment of that ideal.

GOOD WORK

THE state Fire Marshal's department of Louisiana is making an earnest effort to banish fire waste in that state.

Intensive work along educational lines is done in the schools with the objective of instilling ideas of knowledge and carefulness in the men and women of tomorrow.

During fire prevention week addresses are made and motion pictures of actual fires are shown that demonstrate the disastrous results of carelessness.

Inspections are constantly made, and in New Orleans alone, 1,264 major hazards were removed during 1930. During that year the average loss per fire was more than $1,800, which indicates what the fire loss might have been if the eliminated fire hazards had been allowed to remain. The Fire Marshal's office advises on public plans and as to the best methods of correcting existing hazards. Continuous effort, now proving successful, is made to do away with arson and punish the arsonist.

Every state should conduct some such work as this. It should, as well, be done with an attempt to secure the public co-operation that is so necessary to real fire prevention. Once the public realizes that hazards can be readily and cheaply removed and that fire is a matter for individual responsibility, our terrible half-billion dollar annual loss will begin to recede.

MOTOR-LINED CURBS

MOTORS at rest offer a problem as baffling as those in action. To park or not to park is the daily question in every live town in the United States. In most communities garage and outdoor parking space are inadequate to meet the needs of those who motor to town to business by day and to the theatre by night.

Curbstones suddenly become a national nuisance, and likewise a national necessity, if automobiles are to be used at all in crowded centers. The slowing down of traffic by long files of parked cars is not the only resultant inconvenience.

Householders are loud in their complaints, and justly so, of car owners, who park in front of their houses from morning until night, depriving them of the use of parking and unloading facilities and obstructing their view of the street. This is an abuse which can be controlled, but seldom is.

The transition of the motor car from a luxury to a necessity has been so swift, sudden and universal that municipalities have not had time to adjust themselves to new conditions which have followed in its tracks. And the most optimistic are not so sure the "best minds" will be able to solve this problem.

EVERYTHING CIRCULATES—WATER, MATTER, IDEAS, LIES AND THE TRUTH THEY ALL GET AROUND

Marshall Maslin

EVERYTHING gets around
Sooner or later it does.
Everything circulates.

Even matter gets around .... A seed falls and germinates. It pushes it way through the dark earth, reaches the sunlight, grows toward the sky. It becomes a great tree and lives for a thousand years, dies and rots and nourishes the rich earth and is food for seeds.

Water gets around .... It falls on the hills and flows to the valleys. It rushes to the sea and joins the great currents there. It rises toward the sun, congregates in the clouds, falls again to the thirsty earth.

Ideas get around .... The thoughts that men have live undiminished and unscarred through the tumultuous centuries. Rejected by the ignorant, embraced by the wise, they survive .... The thoughts men had in India five thousand years ago fell into books and went across the sea to New England and into the brain of a Yankee named Thoreau. He wrote an essay on "Civil Disobedience." Half a century later a little brown Hindu read that essay in South Africa, took the idea back with him to India, and proposed "Civil Disobedience" to the restless masses of his native land .... That idea got around.

Truth gets around .... Lies get around .... Gossip gets around .... Fear gets around .... Courage gets around .... Everything, today or tomorrow, this year, or next, gets around. It creeps, it tunnels, it walks, it runs, it filters, it flies—and it gets around.

What you are really like—gets around. People find out and they tell—with a wink, with a growl, with a lift of the eyebrows, with silence, with the eager spoken word. If you are a fine fellow or a hypocrite, a racketeer or a square-shooter, it will get around. People will know because—as the wind moves and the water flows and thoughts fly from man to man—Everything Gets Around.

POLITICIANS BLAMED FOR TRADE PARALYSIS THROUGHOUT WORLD

By Sir George Paish
British Economist

THE prevailing international unemployment situation can be attributed to the policies pursued by the governments of the world and the disease of industrial idleness can be characterized as mainly political. The politicians and the statesmen must bear the responsibility.

They have done everything in their power; they desired to do everything in their power to hamper trade. They have increased tariffs, they have imposed embargoes, they have created licenses; in fact, they have left nothing undone to hamper trade. I wish to compliment the politicians and the statesmen of the world upon the success of their policy. They have left nothing undone to hamper the trade of the world and to bring ruin. They have succeeded, but it means the suicide of the world. It is essential that people should realise the danger in which they are, the danger of the complete breakdown of trade bringing unparalleled distress.

This is no mere trade depression. It is a catastrophe of the first moment.

This crisis is merely a continuation of the effects of the shock experienced from the war. The world's economic and financial structure is suffering from an unprecedented over-extension of credit which had never been equaled, with the result that huge amounts of credit could not be honored.

The present situation is indeed a grave one. It is not only grave in America, but it is grave in Great Britain; it is grave on the whole continent; in Asia, South America, Australia, Canada; in fact, there is no part of the world in which there is not great distress.

Each nation has been trying to get out, thinking that its problem is a local one. This has carried us into deeper and deeper distress. This problem is not merely a national problem. It is essential that every nation in the world should co-operate with every other nation to get the world out of distress. The world problem must be faced by the world.

Unless nations stop thinking of another war and shaping their policies accordingly and concentrate their policies on peace and international co-operation, there will be increasing distress in ever larger measure until you hvae difficulty, misfortune and revolution from one end of the world to the other.

STAR LORE

MOON USES ONE SIDERIAL ORBIT ANNUALLY CATCHING UP WITH SUN

THE reason for the moon making one more Sidereal revolution annually than it does Synodic revolution is easily understood: The moon does not complete a Synodic revolution until it has caught up with the sun arriving at the same meridian on the celestial sphere with the sun. The moon constantly journeys eastward in its orbit, but the sun also appears to be moving eastward, too. In a month the sun appears to journey eastward 30 degrees while a star appears to stand still. So the moon, in addition to finishing one Sidereal month, has yet to overtake the sun to complete a Synodic month. This amounts to one lunar orbit in a year.

Comments From Contemporaries

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

There will no cheering or clapping of hands at the news that Senator Fess will probably remain as chairman of the Republican National committee. When he was first appointed, it was understood that it was to act as a stop-gap. His friends said that his senatorial duties were too arduous to enable him to stay on. Then Robert H. Lucas was brought in to take over the burden of office work, and in rapid succession both Messrs. Fess and Lucas committed blunders which disqualified them as spokesmen for the party.

Optimists may discern a ray of hope in a very brief dispatch which says that Senator Fess denies that he has agreed to stay, but this is solace of a pretty negative kind. Republicans have not forgotten Senator Fess' blunder of November 10, in which he virtually told them to accept the Eighteenth amendment as an article of faith or else quit the party scene. It would be far simpler to have Senator Fess depart. It would also be much better politics.

GREENVILLE HERALD

While the government worries about overproduction in almost every line of farming endeavor, the Federal Reserve Bank report issued June 1 quotes the Department of Agriculture as saying there has been a record emergence of insects this year. A relatively warm winter and a cool spring have made conditions fine for the insects. Last year there were practically no insects, the terrific cold weather of the preceding winter having cut the emergence to low levels.

The Department of Agriculture is of the opinion, therefore that crops everywhere will be susceptible to insect ravages this year. Particularly is this true of cotton, which has the boll worm and boll weevil period to go through.

It wouldn't be at all surprising to witness a radical reduction of the cotton surplus this year by way of the boll worm and boll weevil. Heretofore, when the Department of Agriculture has recorded large insect emergence the cotton crop has been materially cut, no matter how good the showing of the plant in the early stages.

"Here's a book that every go-getter should carry in his hip pocket, next to his heart."

What does he mean, "heart?"

Mr. Yarn.

The friend of a New York newspaper woman flew over Long Island with one of the most famous of the American aviatrices. At short intervals, as she explains it, the plane shimmied up and down with an effect that caused the lone cabin passenger to wish that she had led a better life.

At the end of the unsteady ride the pilot asked her guest if she had seen a certain country club, a certain estate and other points of interest.

"Oh, I'm so sorry," she said, when told that her passenger had seen practicaly nothing. "It's strange, though, that you missed so much. Every time we passed something interesting, I jiggled the plane to call your attention to it."

Explaining that modern decorations must be based on industrial motifs, Henry Billings, painter of mechanical murals, declares that:

Several year ago, simple division and fraction marked the limits of the nine-year old child's mind. Today, the rule of eleven ranks equally in importance.

Encouraged by some parents who have lofty social ambitions and are confident that the playing of a good game of bridge will assure their offspring's future popularity—and by other parents and teachers who consider the game excellent mental and ethical training—bridge lessons have become as integral a part of the nine and ten-year old child's life as dancing and French lessons.

Opportunity Knocked

A scenario writer who didn't make good as a Hollywood worker tells of trying for months to sell a scenario. It happened that George Arliss heard an outline of the story and saw in it possibilities.

One day when the writer was knee-deep in gloom his telephone rang.

"This is George Arliss talking—"

"Yeah? Whomiell d'you think you're kiddin'?"

"But my dear fellow, this really is George Arliss—"

"Well, Mr. Arliss," replied the writer, "I hope you're more of an athlete than I think you are. You'll have to be to follow my advice, which is this—"

And having advised Mr. Arliss, the writer banged up the phone.

They say now that when he wakes up in the night and thinks of what a North American side show he made of himself, the scenario writer buries his face in his pillow and moans.

In the News 13 Years Ago

From the files of The Paris Morning News thirteen years ago today.

Monday, June 17, 1918.

James H. Hall and Miss Nell Dudley were married at the home of the bride on Lamar avenue by Rev. Bob Shuler.

Captain James Wiggins Hardison died at the sanitarium following an operation which had been too long delayed.

J. S. Beckham, 83, a farmer living northeast of Paris, died at his home. He came to Texas from Georgia in 1858.

A man from a town east of Paris drove his automobile against a box car at the Bonham street crossing of the Frisco, ruined the auto and paid fines for being drunk and reckless driving.

The democratic county executive committee ordered a single primary on account of people being dead in the war.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

The first fair of which I have been able to learn in Lamar county was held about 1867, when the men had come back from the war and were beginning to start life again. The ground was almost due south of town near Baker branch, beyond where is now the Texas and Pacific railroad. This fair continued several years, and when I came here in 1879 one of the buildings was still standing, but there was no fair held and there had been none for several years.

About 1884 some citizens organized a fair association and had it chartered under the name of the Lamar County Agricultural and Mechanical association, with W. W. Stell president and John H. Walker secretary. This association bought some land from J. C. McCrummen and R. C. Chisum, near where the Greenville road crosses the Texas and Pacific track southwest of Paris, and built a fence and some barns and a grand stand, racing being the principal attraction.

The fair was not successful financially. In August the association borrowed from Lamar county's permanent school fund $3000, which was to be repaid after the fair was held, but the money did not come in and there were debts to lumber men and builders and others. So on Sept. 8 the association executed a note to the county for the $3000, endorsed personally by T. D. Craig, J. C. McCrummen, A. B. Long, M. O. Roberts, W. H. Jennings, J. S. Crook, John Martin, R. A. Gresham, Joe Lyons and Y. W. Hale. A deed of trust was executed by the association to B. J. Baldwin, to secure the county in the payment of the loan.

In January, 1885, as the association owed a number of small bills and some of the creditors were threatening to bring suit for their money, the association went again to the county commissioners and borrowed $4000, paying the $3000 note and interest and taking the balance in cash, and executing another deed of trust to indemnify the endorsers of the note for $4000.

Another fair was held in the fall of 1885 and this too was financially unsuccessful and the note could not be paid. The endorsers on the note in December of that year made a personal note to the county for $4200, due in March, 1886. The land was sold to repay the endorsers and 22 years later, to clear a title to the land, Leslie Hardison, then county judge, executed a release of the deed of trust, setting forth that the loan had "long since been repaid." That was the last fair until the present Lamar county fair was organized.

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BO

Dr. Clendening

Of chronic headaches, migraine in one of its many forms is probably the commonest. Sometimes it is called sick headache, because there are usually symptoms of digestive upset that go with it, especially nausea, possibly even vomiting. When these digestive symptoms overshadow the headache the patient often calls them attacks of biliousness. I learned several years ago that patients who use the old, and among medical men discarded, term biliousness and say they are subject to biliousness, really have abdominal migraine.

Migraine is a peculiar constitutional disease which afflicts certain people, and visits them in attacks. It usually begins at about the age of 15 or 20 and lasts until about the age of 40 or 50, when it goes away, never to return. The attacks come on once a week or once a fortnight, or once a month, or two or three times a year, the time varying with different individuals.

A typical attack can usually be predicted by the victim. There may be spots before the eyes, or the sound of ringing bells in the ears, or of fullness in the abdomen. These preliminary warnings are quite varied, but the victim always knows the headache will come on a few hours afterward. The headache itself is often on one side of the head; it is accompanied by nausea, and sometimes vomiting and a feeling as if the stomach and bowels were absolutely paralyzed. On account of these digestive symptoms the victim usually ascribes it to poisoning from the intestinal tract and blames something in the diet, but this is undeserved. Varying the diet is not calculated to stop the attacks.

It is a mysterious disease. And aside from the known fact that it is hereditary and runs in families, we know little or nothing about its causes. Of its hereditary nature there is no doubt whatever. It has been traced in one instance through five generations, one or more members of the family in each generation being subject to attacks.

Treatment has not been conspicuously successful. Much can be done to moderate the discomfort of the attack itself, but prevention of recurrences can not be assurred to anyone. Diet has been found to be of little value. It is important, however, for the patient to be warned against getting on a one-sided, unbalanced diet. A starvation diet in the idea that the attacks are due to food poisoning or digestive upsets. Radical treatments of all kinds should be regarded with suspicion. False hopes aroused of cure by removal of the gallbladder have been in most instances disappointments.

The best results in the prevention of recurrent attacks has been from the injection in the vein of foreign proteins, particularly typhoid tone. The treatment must, of course, be conducted under the direction of a physician. In many cass, a course of treatments of this sort has banished the disease for years.

For treatment of the acute attack many patients have the experience that if they can get a cathartic to act in the early stages before the bowels become paralyzed the attack will be aborted. The relief of the headache itself comes patient has his or her own favorite remedy, most of them based on the formula of the familiar "migraine" tablets, to be found in any drug store.

Guiding Your Child

PLAYING WITH WATER
By Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

Every child loves to play with water. He can learn a great deal and have intense fun with it while the stage of his interest lasts. The pleasure of playing with water need not be denied, as it usually is, from motives of health and convenience.

Both the kitchen sink and the bath tub are under proper circumstances fine places to use for play.

When the child is about to take a bath or a nap, and his clothes are soon to be removed anyway, there is no harm in getting pretty wet just prior to the event. But it is quite possible to keep him dry by fitting him out with a rubber apron. He can readily be taught enough skill and care to keep him from spilling so much water that he will wet his shoes and stockings. Under these conditions even the apartment house child can have his fill of water play.

In the bath tub his operations can be on a large scale. Here he can sail his fleet encountering storms and shipwrecks. He can fish for his celluloid frogs and fish and turtles. He can pour water in and out of large buckets, learning something of motor control necessary in manipulating heavy things in lifting, tilting, pouring from them. In this sort of play his imagination and his muscles are equally active.

Standing on a substantial box or a solid chair at the kitchen sink he can have a different kind of fun. He should have his equipment aluminum cups of different sizes, shallow pans, funnels and a soap bubble apparatus. The possibilities are inexhaustible. The child will be absorbed for an hour at a time. He loves to pour water endlessly from one pan to another. He tries to lift a full pan without spilling any. He learns that it takes several small cups to fill a large one. He finds out how to turn the water taps, regulate the streams, and get either hot or cold water as he pleases.

When we see these simple occupations from the child's point of view we realize that here are opportunities in every home for as much educational as many of the best nursery school and kindergarten.

Washington Daily Letter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON.—Without disputing the genuineness of Germany's hardships, the best informed perhaps of all the advisers of the Washington administration concerning conditions in the fatherland takes the view that the Berlin government has adopted a policy of emphasizing them to their maximum in international negotiations. This, the adviser believes, is done as a means of diverting Teutonic resentment, if possible, from the government itself into a foreign channel, hoping it will dissipate itself thus instead of developing dangerously at home.

"That there is ground for anxiety," said this authority, whom I am not at liberty to name, but who recently returned from a tour of every important western European country, "is undeniable. More than a fourth of Germany's labor is unemployed.

"The other three-quarters still suffer from the high cost of living, for although gross commodity prices have declined, retail figures are little if any lower and now a vigorous wage reduction campaign has begun.

"Nevertheless in some respects the German situation is not so bad. While exports have fallen off the slump is less than in America, for example. Allowance being made for price changes, the loss in physical quantities is under 7 per cent.

"Also, despite the depression, Germany managed to secure foreign funds to a much greater total in 1930 than 1929, with the result that her factories have been able to lay in large stocks of imported raw materials at low prices.

"The nation's economic status, although painful, might be considerably worse."

"The political peril may be graver.

"Discontent unquestionably is acute. The psychological factor doubtless counts. The people feel beaten, oppressed. They feel increasingly sense the strain not only in raising the money for reparations but of transmitting them, that is the strain of salesmanship in the face of the tariff barriers surrounding nearly every customer country. Whether in the event of a revolutionary movement the trend would be Fascist or Communistic is anyone's guess.

"It must be remembered that the Hitlerites are by no means all of the nationalistic type. Both communists and reds are included among them, their sole bond of sympathy being a desire to overthrow the present regime. Should they accomplish it, of course, they immediately would fall to fighting among themselves, but meanwhile they are united.

Probably today's governing group is well advised to seek a method of harmonizing such elements as they can even on a program of reparations modification—provided it does not go too far.

"Should Germany actually declare further payments impossible a crisis of the most serious nature would be precipitated.

"I do not like to speculate on what might follow."

Cubs Rally to Nose Out Braves

CHICAGO, June 16. (AP)—Trailing by seven runs in the fourth inning, the Chicago Cubs came from behind Tuesday to nip the Boston Braves, 8-7, in the final game of the series. It was the only Chicago victory of the series.

Shaky Boston pitching, an infield error, and a disputed decision by Umpire Clark gave the Cubs victory in the seventh inning when they scored four runs off Moss, Zachary and Seibold.

Steers Cop 7-4 Tilt With Bucs

GALVESTON, June 16. (AP)—The Dallas Steers got away from the Galveston Bucs in the third inning at Moody stadium here Tuesday night and before the stampede could be stopped had scored 6 runs. The final score was 7-4, favoring the Steers. The Bucs looked dangerous in the 7th when they scored 3 runs, but Garland went to the mound for Dallas and held them at bay during the rest of the game.

Homers Fatal to Houston Buffs

HOUSTON, June 16. (AP)—Yaryan clouted a brace of homers here Tuesday night to beat "Dizzy" Dean, the young married man, and win 4 to 3 from Ft. Worth. Yaryan's first homer came in the 7th with the bases empty when he socked the ball over the right field wall. He came to bat in the ninth with his team trailing 1 to 3, and two men on. He drove the ball over the left center fence.

Navy Eight Wins At Pougheepsie

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 16. (AP)—Just when it was supposed their guns had been spiked, the United States Naval Academy's crew fired a sudden broadside into the ranks of their college rivals Tuesday and raced to triumph over eight of the country's best crews in the four-mile varsity championship battle down the Hudson.

The midshipmen beat Cornell's heavy favorites by nearly a length and a half and Washington by close to two lengths in a spectacular three-cornered struggle for the blue ribbon prize.

These three fought it out through the driving rain and mist over the last mile, with the rest of the fleet scattered and badly beaten.

THE BAT BAG By Harry Cox

The Hugo Indians, a fast stepping semi-pro ball club, won Sunday from Idabel by a score of 5 to 3. The Indians have dropped only two ball games this season, one of which was to their friendly enemies, the Antlers crew. The Indians have just built a new ball park or to be more exact, a new fence, with plenty of inside room, including ample parking space for cars. The field is a spacious one and any player who hits one over any of the fences will have done something. The Indians take on Pauls Valley next Sunday and Monday.

Semi-pro ball, by the way, seems to be coming back. Paris people, accustomed to professional ball, don't seem to be interested in the amateur brand of the game. The city league has been playing some good baseball, and has some excellent material. To date all games have been played out of the city aside from the regularly scheduled city league games which are played four days a week. In 1919 and 1920 semi-pro ball had a big run in Paris and patrons saw some real baseball and some real ball players.

Red Snapp managed the club at that time and drew some of the largest crowds that ever visited a local park. In one game with Sulphur Springs the crowd overflowed the playing field. That was the game in which Peter Donahue went down to defeat and carried with him some of the backers of the club, who had wagered as high as six to one on the supposedly invincible Sulphur Springs club. That the best team doesn't always win was evidenced in that game, as every one of that Sulphur Springs club went into professional baseball and starred, except Dutch Meyers, the manager. Five of them went to the big league.

Two of the Moore boys went to bat Sunday in a pinch—but it was not a day for the sons of Mrs. Moore, as they failed to produce. Jimmy batted for Shores in the Philadelphia-St. Louis game, while J. Moore, whose front moniker happens to be Joe, performed a like chore for the Chicago Cubs. The other Moore boys, Randy with the Boston Nationals, Wilcey with the Boston Red Sox, did not get into the game. There are eight Moores in the big leagues this year, but so far none of them have done anything startling.

Saw Dandy Dave Davenport over at Hugo Sunday—at a distance. Dave has seen a lot of America since he embarked on a professional baseball career with the big leagues and the larger minors. His last professional engagement was in the Western league, where he had a managerial fling. Dave made the hop to the fast set from San Antonio, and for a number of years was regarded as a star. Brother Claude has also seen major league service, but never achieved the fame that came the way of Dandy Dave.

Jack Russell, Paris product, pitched one of the best games of the current American league season last week when he licked Detroit, holding them to three hits. Flinging three hit baseball these days is a feat worth writing home about, and to do it with a gang like the Boston Red Sox behind a chunker, it really borders on the phenomenal. Jack also pitched a whale of a game against the world champion Athletics, holding them scoreless for eleven innings, only to go down to defeat in the twelfth. Any pitcher that can go even nine innings against the Athletics is bound to possess more than average ability, as few of the American league chunkers go through a regulation game against the wallopers of Connie Mack.

Russell last year, didn't have a great average in the matter of games won, but he did rank well up with the leaders in the earned run percentage, which is the American league method of gauging a pitcher's effectiveness. It takes runs to win ball games, and when a pitcher can keep down the earned run percentage to a minimum it shows that it is the fault of his mates, rather than the chunker's, when they fail to win. In four games for Russell this season his mates only scored five runs for him, which shows the weakness of the Sox at the bat and their fielding average is way down the line. The Sox don't boast even one individual or outstanding star.

And speaking of stars Connie Mack has a constellation in Grove, Earnshaw, Walberg, Cochrane, Foxx, Simmons, Haas and Miller. The three first named, in games through Wednesday of last week, had chimed in with 29 victories between them, with only five losses. Earnshaw and Walberg have pitched more complete games than the other lefthanded star, Grove. Walberg didn't do much last season, but has come this year with a vengeance. The other pitchers on the Athletic staff don't have much to do, being used only occasionally. When the Macks want to grab a game they send in one of the three named above, and they deliver.

The Boston Nationals, the year they won the National league pennant and the world series from Connie Mack's Athletics, had a three man pitching staff in Tyler, Rudolph and James. In last place on July 4 the Bostons skyrocketed to the top of the National league heap and then licked the supposedly invincible Athletics in four straight games. This is the only time in the history of the game that a team in last place in July got to the top, and the only time in history that a Mack machine had been licked four times in a row for world series honors.

It is also a fact worthy of note that after that season the "Big Three" of Tyler, Rudolph and the advent of fair prices, between James never amounted to anything and finally dropped out of the game. George Stallings, Boston manager, was heralded as a "Miracle Man" but when his three stars became dimmed, Georgie from Georgia became just a manager, which gives rise to the oft repeated suspicion that after all it is the players that make the manager.

BEAUMONT, June 16. (AP)—Luke Hamlin won his ninth game Tuesday, defeating the Spudders, 4-3 in the second game of the series. He allowed five hits, two of which were homers by Hungling and Bochey Koch. Hillin pitched good ball himself. The teams made a total of 10 errors but only two of them contributed to a score. In the eighth inning Hungling was chased by Umpire Ballanfant after he continued to argue on being called out on a third strike. White was hit on the head by a pitched ball in the first, but stayed in the game.

CHAPTER 37

The three looked up expectantly when Mary entered the studio. All knew who it would be, but it was evident that they had not expected her so early. Each of them experienced a different reaction.

Dick looked as if he had been caught in a trap around which he had been playing and knew would snap if he were not careful, yet was surprised when it did. Willa looked apprehensive and ill-at-ease, as if she had been caught at sheltering a spy of the enemy. Ramon glanced at the two significantly, and shrugged aside all responsibility if the explosion occured at the wrong moment—as men do in such crises.

As for Mary, the sight of Dick with the ruddy firelight shimmering on his handsome face and sleek hair, turned her blood to water, and she leaned weakly against the door after having closed it.

When she could command her voice and force her legs to move—it seemed an hour before she could—she walked toward them and said, "Hello, everyone."

"Well, you are in early, aren't you?" Willa inquired. "We didn't expect you so soon, but we are glad you came. Pull up a chair, Ramon, bring another cup, so I can pour Mary some coffee. Cold outside, isn't it?"

"Is it—I hadn't noticed—yes, it is, I supose."

"How should Mary know it is cold?" Ramon asked, with an attempt at a jest. "She rides in heated palaces these days, eh, Mary?"

"That's right," Dick agreed. "I hear you were out home last night too, for a change."

"Yes, I get homesick, even if I do have a nice adopted family right here. I just have to see Mom often. I believe that Tim and Ted grow half an inch a week when I am away. They always measure up to me when I see them. They'll be grown up first thing we know, playing football and then getting into the scuffle of life," she sighed, letting her coat fall from her shoulders.

"Well, you did it, didn't you? I'll wager you grew up faster than those boys will. You had to, I believe, so the rest could take their time about it." Dick observed. He had brought a chair closer into the little semi-circle for her, and held out the cup of coffee Willa had poured.

She thanked him with a tremulous smile, and he must have been blind, not to have seen the light in her eyes that was not a reflection of the firelight.

"And that's what everyone wants to do—grow older just as fast as they can—until they reach a place where they realize that they actually are getting old, then they want to slow up time," Ramon contributed to the discussion.

"Which is about the time that Time has acquired a good swift pace and can't slow down," Willa added.

They chatted for awhile of such momentous and inconsequential things, and Dick left early.

Willa remarked, when he had gone, "Well, you walked right into it. I thought you would be home late if you were working with your boss and then going to dinner."

"I wasn't with Foster tonight. But I am not trying to run from Dick. I don't mind in the least. I only wondered why he was here tonight."

"He came to talk with us about some bonds. We have another little nest egg to invest, and we always give our business to Dick."

"Oh, I beg your pardon for being inquisitive, I'm sorry. I just knew that he hadn't been around for awhile, you know."

The incident of seeing Dick so unexpectedly for a few minutes had disturbed Mary far more than the preceding experience of the evening with Martin. She tried to efface Dick from her thoughts by recalling the words Martin had said—the memory of his earnest face, the surprise that his words had given her. She still doubted his sincerity, somewhat.

Mary had to work late the next evening, so her engagement to drive with Martin was postponed until the following night. She pleaded a headache to avoid going out to dinner with Foster. This marathon of dining with wealthy suitors was too exhausting to be amusing, even, she thought.

Foster looked at her queerly when she declined his invitation, but insisted upon driving her home anyway.

"You should have told me you had a headache when I asked you to work late. Don't try to come to work in the morning. I'm sorry if I imposed upon you."

"Not at all. It isn't much, really, only I don't feel like being entertained tonight. I shall be fine after a night's rest. I need rest more than food."

When he had left her, instead of entering the apartment, Mary slipped around the corner to a little Italian restaurant and had some spaghetti and coffee. Willa and Ramon were absorbed in their work when she returned to the apartment, so she gratefully went to her room to be alone with her perplexing thoughts.

It was not often that investment bankers visited each others offices. Their frequent meetings were usually about the round tables of directors' meetings, at their social clubs or on the golf links. But Ronald K. Foster and Dwight Blair, of Jameson-Blair had been lifelong friends and were seen together, often. They talked over confidential matters and consulted with each other frequently, especially if one or the other were launching a new stock offering.

Foster said to Mary when he arrived at the office the next morning, "Get Blair and see if he can give me a half hour right away. I have to see him today, sometime and I'm busy the rest of the day. I see. If he can't make it until later, cancel whichever of my appointments interferes."

It was rather odd, thought Mary—waiting for Blair's secretary to answer the telephone—to hear her own sister's voice respond to the number she dialed. The arrangements were completed, and Foster left the office shortly afterward.

A little later, he entered the offices of Jameson-Blair and stood before the operator in the reception room—who was none other than Bonnie Vaughn.

She was expecting Mary's boss to come in, but she did not know that the rather handsome, jaunty middleaged man who had just stepped out of the elevator was Ronald K. Foster. Her wide blue eyes brightened and she assumed her most seductive smile as he approached her desk. He was somebody, she knew.

"Mr. Foster to see Mr. Blair," he announced. "My secretary just made an appointment."

Bonnie emitted a little gasp of surprise and, instead of turning immediately to ring Mr. Blair's office, she exclaimed, "Are you Mr. Foster? Uhm! Uhm! well, if that isn't a surprise! I'll never be surprised again in my life. You see, I'm Mary Vaughn's sister, and from what she said about you, I had supposed you were a regular old fossil!"

He stared at her with anger, for a moment, then realized that an amazingly pretty girl was smiling at him, and presently, he smiled, too. He removed his hat and bowed slightly. "Is that so? You are the little sister then, of whom Miss Vaughn has spoken. I didn't know that you worked here—or anywhere in New York."

"Oh, I've only been here for a few weeks. Well, I sure am glad to know Mary has such a nice boss but I never did think so, from her few remarks. Of course, Mary doesn't say much, you know."

"Doesn't she? I hadn't noticed. She is an excellent secretary." So she thought he was an old fossil, did she? Perhaps that was why she wouldn't go to dinner with him. Well!

With a shy smile that was one-half adoration and one-half vexation, Bonnie turned aside to her duties. She hesitated, thought for a moment, then asked apologetically and with a quaint tilt of her golden head, "Was it Mr. Jameson you wished to see, Mr. Foster?"

"Blair," he corrected pleasantly, but if his secretary had made such a mistake, he would have been quite astonished.

"Oh, yes, of course. I'm sorry. You quite distracted me—Mr. Foster."

He reflected, on his way to Blair's office, that not many establishments had such charming hostesses at their switchboards. Too bad a pretty child like that had to work all day in an office. She belonged in a more attractive setting, and should be protected from the world.

When he left the office, he stopped again and lifted his hat. "I am glad to have met you, Miss Vaughn. Thank you for introducing yourself."

"Perhaps I shouldn't have," she apologized, naively, "But you have no idea how surprised I was to find that a handsome, distinguished looking man whom I noticed the minute you came in, was Mary's boss. What a break for her—to work for a man like you."

Foster raised his chin and shoulders a notch and perked up in general. The vain male of the species preening before the flattering coquette.

"You flatter me," he smiled.

"Do I? Well, now I leave it to anybody, if you look a day over thirty-five. If you are, you've got old Ponce de Leon, the gland specialist and Edna Wallace Hopper beat a mile," she jested coyly.

"I think you put Venus and Cleopatra and a few of the famous beauties in second place, yourself," he surprised himself by saying.

Bonnie lowered her eyes with feigned embarrassment, and managed a blush that tinted her creamy skin with a delicate rose-pink.

"I beg your pardon, but I don't suppose you know that you are very beautiful," he apologized, and added, "You don't resemble your sister at all. Well, goodbye."

Her wide eyes looked up at him, appealing, "Goodbye, and I hope that I'll see you again," she smiled.

"Of course," he agreed. "I drop in here quite often. Blair is a very old friend of mine."

"That's nice, she said softly, and apropos of nothing.

All Lobster, Yard Wide

"All lobster and a yard wide" sounds much more like dry goods than fish from the Atlantic, but that's what pretty Pauline Mode is referring to with her monster 24-pound lobster exhibited alongside an ordinary sized one. The big prize was brought into Boston by the fishing vessel "John Manta." Looks like more than a square meal to us, even with Pauline along.

Deaths and In Memoriam 3

In 1881, when Archie Park was admitted to the practice of law, I was justice of the peace in precinct No. 2 in Lamar county. Arch commenced his law practice in my regular monthly terms of court, and some of his first cases were in my court.

He and a number of Paris lawyers came out regularly once every month, making the trip on horseback. I recall the names Jim Long, Horace Bradley, Jake Wilson and concerning the practice of law, Jake Hodges was the county attorney.

That was 50 years ago, and I have known Arch ever since, and Paris never had in all these years a better citizen, a more dependable consistent man. I have heard numbers of men who have come to him for advice say that he advised them to try and compromise their troubles and have no law suit when he could have gotten a fee by taking the case. Not many lawyers would do this when it meant the loss of a fee. J. A. DRUMMOND.

Meili-Daniel Wedding Saturday At Honey Grove Brilliant Affair

HONEY GROVE, June 16—Saturday evening at the Baptist church, Marjorie Eugenia Daniel of Honey Grove became the bride of William F. Meili of Louisville, Ky., the Rev. S. R. Smith of Bonham officiating.

The church was decorated in the bride's colors, green and yellow. A profusion of palms, ferns and smilax formed a background for the vine covered bridal arch beneath which the vows were taken. Tall floor baskets of yellow gladiolli and smaller baskets of shasta daisies were placed at intervals about the arch. Floor candelabra on each side of the arch held seven tall ivory candles interspersed with green leaves. The rails of the balcony above the arch were covered with green foliage, the top balustrade holding several silver candelabra containing tall ivory candles. The piano was dressed with flowers and the altar was surrounded with a bank of sword ferns. White tulle bows caught with bouquets of flowers marked the pews occupied by the family and relatives of the bride and groom.

As the time for the ceremony drew near the candles were lighted by the Rev. S. R. Smith and Jeff Gunn, their soft glow illuminating the church throughout the service and the carpet on which the bride walked was rolled out by the ushers.

At eighty-thirty o'clock Miss Emetta Altman of Sherman and Mrs. A. M. Brenecke of Denison were ushered to the piano. Mrs. Brenecke sang as the pre-nuptial music "At Dawning" and "All For You." As the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin were played, the members of the wedding party began assembling. The groom entered from the right accompanied by his best man, Walter Baskerville of Minneapolis, Minn., and approached the altar where they awaited the bride. Mr. Meili's groomsmen, Herman Meili, his brother, Albert H. Blocker of Houston, J. Harold Evans of Ft. Worth and Frank Betts of Dallas, approached and ascended the altar, standing on each side of the bridal arch. The bridesmaids, Mmes. Wynne Pearce of Orange, J. Harrold Evans of Ft. Worth and Frank Betts of Dallas, the junior bridesmaid little Marian Jane Miller, cousin of the bride, and the matron of honor, Mrs. Albert H. Blocker of Houston, entered from the left, approaching and ascending the altar where they stood beside the groomsmen to form a semi-circle on each side of the bride and groom. The maid of honor, Miss Ida Epps of Ft. Worth, entered and approached the altar where she awaited the bride. The bride's senior attendants were all dressed alike in frocks of yellow embroidered organdie with tight fitting bodice, full ankle length skirts, circular bertha and double peplums. Each wore a green taffeta sash, green necklace and green slippers and carried a shower bouquet of shasta daisies and yellow gladiolli.

The junior bridesmaid wore a frock made colonial style with fitted bodice, ruffled shoulder bertha and full ankle length ruffled skirt, made of organdie shading from palest yellow to a deep orange. She wore a green hair ribbon and carried a colonial bouquet.

Little Misses Olivia Gene Bomar, niece of the bride, and Mary Ann Blocker of Houston, dressed in dainty green organdies made empire style with full ankle length ruffled skirts and green hair ribbons, scattered rose petals from flower decorated baskets on the carpet where the bride walked.

The bride was accompanied to the altar by her father where she met the groom with whom she ascended the altar, followed by the maid of honor and best man who took their places on either side before the Rev. S. R. Smith who read the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of lustrous ivory satin made with fitted bodice, long sleeves and full skirt that swept the floor with its train. Her veil of ivory tulle fell from a cap of real lace held in place by orange blossoms. She wore ivory satin slippers, matching the gown. Her only ornament was a three-strand pearl necklace and she carried an arm bouquet of cream colored Ophelia roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

Standing beneath the bridal arch the bride and groom faced the minister as the ring ceremony was read and the vows taken. Miss Altman at the piano played softly during the ceremony, and at its close the wedding party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Following the ceremony an informal reception for the party and intimate friends was held at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Daniel, on Hickory street. The receiving line included Dr. and Mrs. Daniel, the bride and groom and members of the wedding party. The color scheme of green and yellow was followed in the house decorations. The dining table was laid with a Normandy lace banquet cloth a gift to the bride from her mother, and centered with a three tiered white wedding cake surmounted with a miniature bride. Ferns and lilies of the valley were circled around the cake and tall green candles in crystal holders graced each end of the table. After the guests had been received they were ushered into the dining room where the cake was cut by the bride. Punch was served by Misses Katherine and Martha Trout, Mary Palmer Allen and Elizabeth Saylor. Mrs. T. F. Williamson had charge of the bride's register. Mr. and Mrs. Meili received many gifts, telegrams and letters from friends.

Mrs. Meili's going away costume was an ensemble of skipper blue crepe with white net tucked blouse and accessories to match. After a two weeks' automobile tour Mr. and Mrs. Meili will be at home at 2226 Walter Dale Terrace, Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Meili, the youngest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel, was born and reared in Honey Grove, and educated in the city schools, later attending and graduating from Baylor college, in Belton, Texas. She took a special course in music at Northwestern universits, Evanston, Ill., later teaching music in the public schools of Ft. Worth. She is an attractive young woman, loved by everyone for her charming manner.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Meili of Minneapolis, Minn., is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He is engaged in business in Louisville.

Among out of town guests present were: Mrs. Moffet Miller of Houston, aunt of the bride; Mrs. Herman Meili of Minneapolis, sister-in-law of the groom; Miss Mildred Smith of Bonham; Mrs. Tom Brock and son, Mrs. E. D. Ingram, Misses Marguerite Prescott and Jodie Gaston, Mrs. Groseclose, Mr. Healey, Al Kuhns and T. H. Brigance, uncle of the bride, all of Ft. Worth and T. F. Williamson Jr. of Oklahoma City.

During the encampment of the Home Demonstration clubs of Lamar county this summer there will be a stunt night in which each club represented will have to give some form of entertainment. The women's encampment will be July 11 and 12.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, June 16, (AP)—After a rather uneventful day with quiet trading and comparatively small price changes, cotton developed increased strength during the last hour and closed firm with net gains of 26 to 27 points. The Liverpool market was slightly steadier than had been anticipated but this seemed to be offset by early heaviness in the stock market and in absence of a noticeable improvement in trade conditions in general.

Sentiment during the day was a good deal divided owing to the fact that no very definite change seemed to have occurred in underlying basic conditions, but the evidences of more independent stability of values seemed to attract some buying and late in the day Wall street houses were on the buying side with some evidences of a moderate amount of new interest.

Liverpool cables said that the market there had been influenced by continental buying which absorbed local liquidation and said there was a better feeling in Manchester.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, June 16, (AP)—Cotton was somewhat more active here Tuesday and a sharp rally in late trading ended in net gains for the day of 25 to 28 points.

Earlier, prices fluctuated in a comparatively moderate range, and in spite of sporadic reactions showed a tendency to rally quickly. The general market closed very steady up 25 to 28 points for the day.

Liverpool came in about as due to 1 penny point better than due. Private cables stated that continental buying absorbed local liquidation. Manchester cabled that there was a better feeling in the market and yarns were steadier and in improved demand.

July advanced to 8.83, October to 9.19 and December to 9.43 up 29 points from the early lows. The close was at or near the top active months showing net gain for the day of 25 to 26 points.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, June 16, (AP)—Wheat price downturns Tuesday followed official statements generally interpreted to mean that farm board allies would continue competition with private interests in the grain trade. Widespread notice was taken of a denial by the chairman of the farm board that he had promised a definite announcement as to whether the board would withhold from the markets from one year 200,000,000 bushels of wheat. Russian reports indicated 60,000,000 acres of spring wheat sown, against 50,000,000 a year ago.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to 1 cent lower, corn 1-8 to 3-4 advanced, oats 1-8 to 1-4 off, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Corn showed resistance to selling pressure, and rose on account of better shipping demand. Oats sympathized with wheat weakness, and declined to the lowest prices since 1901.

Closing indemnities: wheat, July 57, 58 3-8 to 1-2; Sept. 56 7-8 to 57, 58 to 58 1-8. Corn, July 57 to 57 1-8, 58 1-4; Sept. 52 3-8, 52 3-4; Dec. 46, 46 3-8.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, June 16, (AP)—The stock market dropped anchor Tuesday to await a lifting of the latest fog of uncertainty to descend upon Wall street.

Prices receded in extremely sluggish trading during the greater part of the day, but stiffened in the final dealings, to close with a steady tone. Net gains and losses were mixed and largely inconsequential. Sales of 1,100,000 shares were the smallest reported for a five hour session since last August.

Bears have lost courage since the stock exchange ordered a daily report on the extent and identity of the short interest last month, and were not encouarged by the remarks of President Hoover in Indianapolis, where he stated "we must determine whether the facilities of our securities and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions."

Wall street was particularly interested in the huge releases of gold held by the federal reserve bank for foreign account, and the continued improvement in German exchange and German bonds.

In stocks, attention converged on the rails, upon the eve of the expected filing with the interstate commerce commission of the petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. The recent profit-taking which has come into this group after the upturn of a few days ago was continued until the last hour, when rail shares rallied.

Fort Worth Livestock.

FORT WORTH, June 16, (AP)—Hogs, 500; market steady to 10 higher; rail and truck top 6.70; two loads medium to good mixed weight rail hogs 6.60 to 6.70; bulk better grades 170 to 230 lb. truck hogs 6.60 to 6.70; packing sows steady to 25 higher, mostly 5.00 to 5.25.
